A. L. Miller Senior High School

Lanier Senior High School

Dr. Mark Smith has ably carried out the responsibilities as Superintendent of Bibb County Schools for sixteen years. His outstanding ability as an educator is reflected in the remarkable progress made in the school system during his administration. Distinguished and respected, he is well known throughout the nation for his participation in educational and in civic organizations.

Mr. Howard Bridges has held the position of Assistant Superintendent since 1954. In a newly-created position, he has capably taken charge of supplies and maintenance of buildings and has served as coordinator of the high schools. During his three years in the system, he has proved his real ability as an administrator.

The basic principles and policies of the BIBB COUNTY BOARD of EDUCATION were formulated in 1872. Since then, members of the Board have each year assumed the responsibilities for the administration of the schools. They have worked tirelessly and energetically in an effort to have the program of education and the staff operate effectively for the development of the pupils of Bibb County.

At the present the Board consists of these outstanding citizens: Oscar L. Long, Herbert F. Birdsey, George P. Rankin, Jr., Lee M. Happ, William P. Simmons, Treasurer; Assistant Superintendent W. Howard Bridges, J. D. Crump, President; Superintendent Mark A. Smith, H. G. Weaver, Vice President; Albert S. Hatcher, Jr., Mallory C. Atkinson, Secretary; Wallace Miller, Jr., Walter C. Stevens, B. F. Merritt, Jr. Absent when the picture was made were Charles C. Hertwig and Frank M. Willingham.

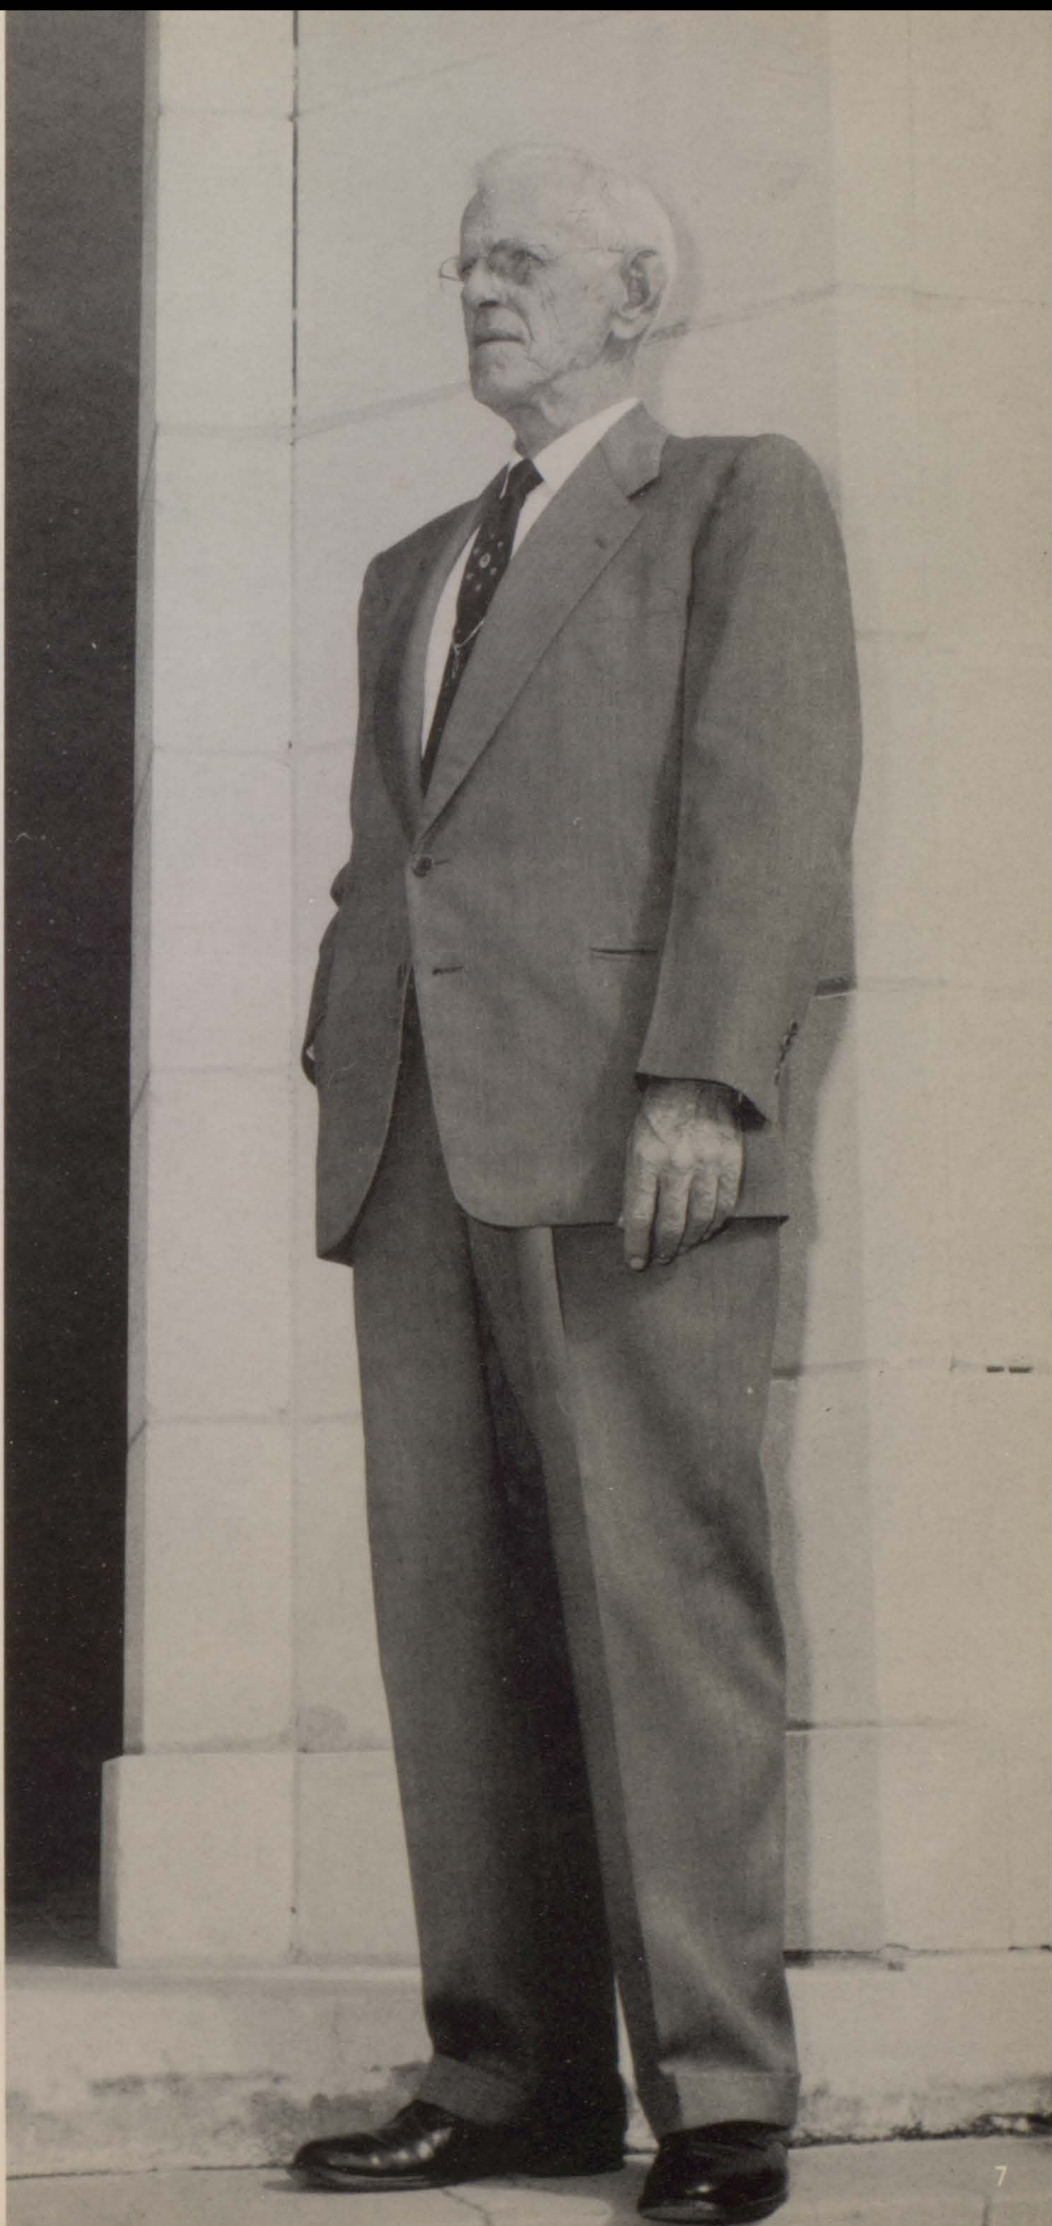

As we look upon this portrait, we are reminded of our school's motto, "We Lead," for Principal A. J. Swann is a living example of these words. And in his daily life within school and without, his conduct typifies all that makes for a Christian gentleman in the noblest sense of the term—f o r c e, loyalty, strength of character, understanding, high ideals of scholarship, constant self-discipline, respect for law and order, and love of job, his country, his God, and his fellowman.

"Here is a man—all in all!" You lead, Mr. Swann—we will follow!

H o r a c e S. Lasseter, principal of Miller Senior High, has given of himself to make Miller a school of the highest standards. Under his organization and leadership, the school has attained an enviable record in the accomplishments of its graduates—in college, in the home, and in business.

Ever conscious of the objectives and standards of the whole school and its function in the community, he has, nevertheless, always stressed the importance of the individual and her part in a democracy. As a friend, through personal counseling and self-example, he has instilled in the minds of students the highest ideals — educational, moral, and spiritual.

Mr. Lasseter has performed his difficult task as principal with the quietness and firmness characteristic of a true leader.

Introducing the Miller Faculty is Mrs. Mary Barber, the efficient secretary of the Miller office.

Conferring in the library are the three language teachers of Miller—Mrs. Elizabeth Poe Clark, Latin; Miss Geraldine Jackson, Spanish; and Mrs. Sue Moss, French.

In a home economics classroom Mrs. Kathryn Ross, Mrs. Lena Pendergrass, and Mrs. Virginia Dorrah of the homemaking department discuss the steps in making a blouse.

Enjoying a few minutes together are the business teachers: Miss Agnes Pittman, Mrs. Mary F. Pellew, Miss Ann Culverhouse, Mrs. Margaret P. Davis, Mrs. Margaret Elkins, Mrs. Lois Willingham, and Mrs. Darien Thrasher.

Mrs. Betty K. Stewart, Miss Mary Holmes, Miss Nancy White, Mrs. Frances Brubaker, Miss Florence Blair, Miss Ann Henry, and Miss Margie Nell Whitlock, teachers in the social science department, discuss the highlights of the Presidential election.

Members of the English department, Miss Lucile Carswell, Miss Yonah Hurt, Mrs. Ann Martin Holmes, Miss Addie Funderburke, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, Miss Mary Alfriend, and Miss Catherine Jones are trying out a tape recorder, the newest addition to the equipment of the English department.

Admiring a science bulletin board are Miss Emily Orr, biology teacher, and Mrs. Julia Carver, biology and chemistry instructor.

Looking at a new book in the library are Mrs. Ida H. Brown, art teacher, and Mrs. Dorothy Watson, librarian.

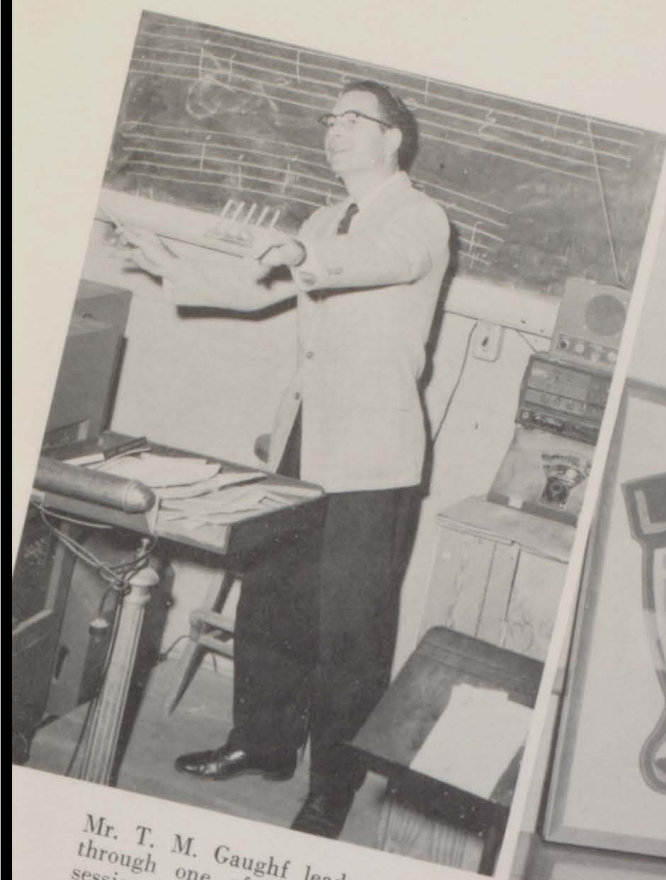

Outlining plans for their math classes are Miss Willie Mae Little, algebra, and Miss Dorothy Simmons, geometry and arithmetic teacher.

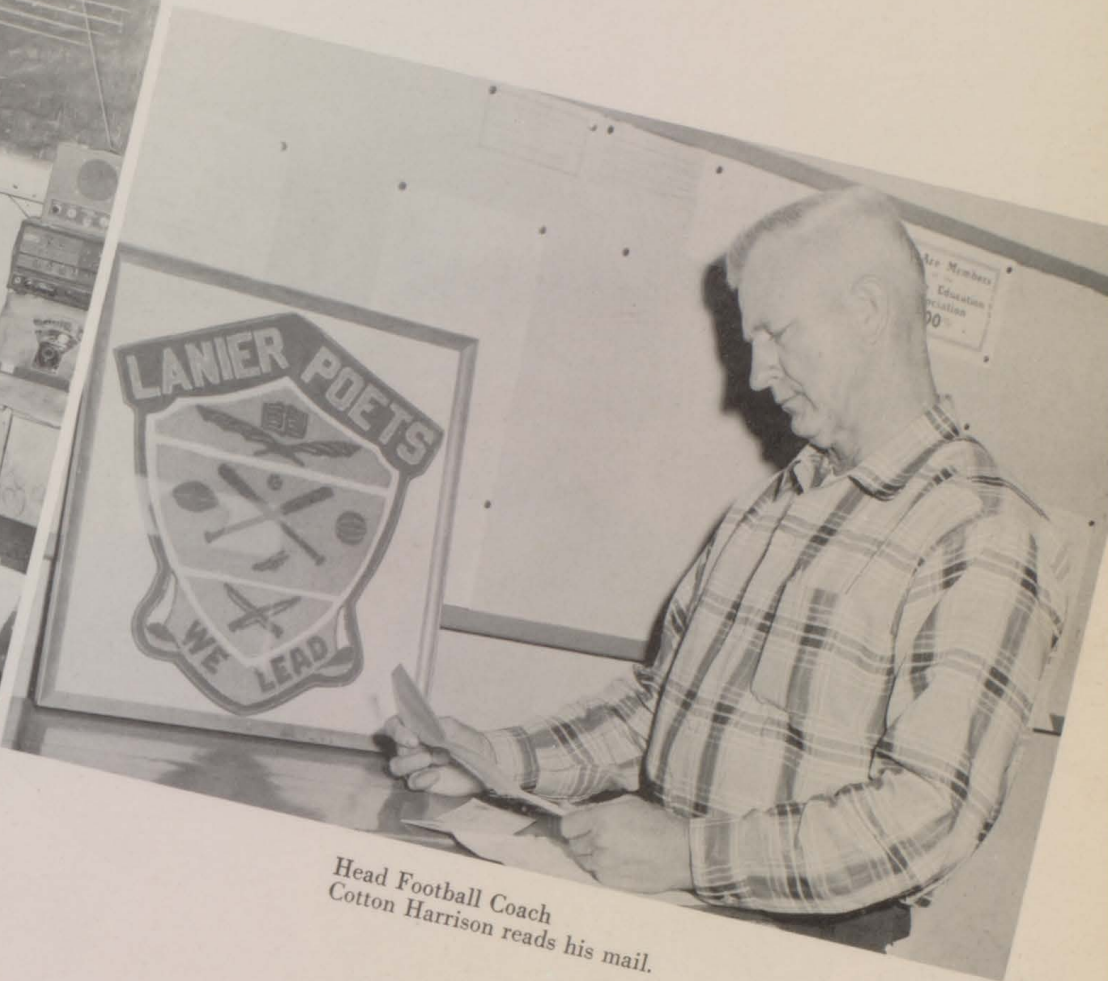

Serving lunch are Miller's dietitians, Mrs. J. C. Bynum and Mrs. Amy Olmstead.

Gym instructors, Miss Rosalyn Harden and Miss Joyce Reddick, get ready for the day's activities.

Mr. T. M. Gaughf leads the band through one of its many practice sessions.

Caught studying the Poet Leader are members of the English department: Miss Alice Lott, Miss Josephine Early, Mr. J. A. Gratigny, and Mrs. Elizabeth Glass.

Performing one of the many details involved in running the library is Miss Mary Del McCaw, Librarian.

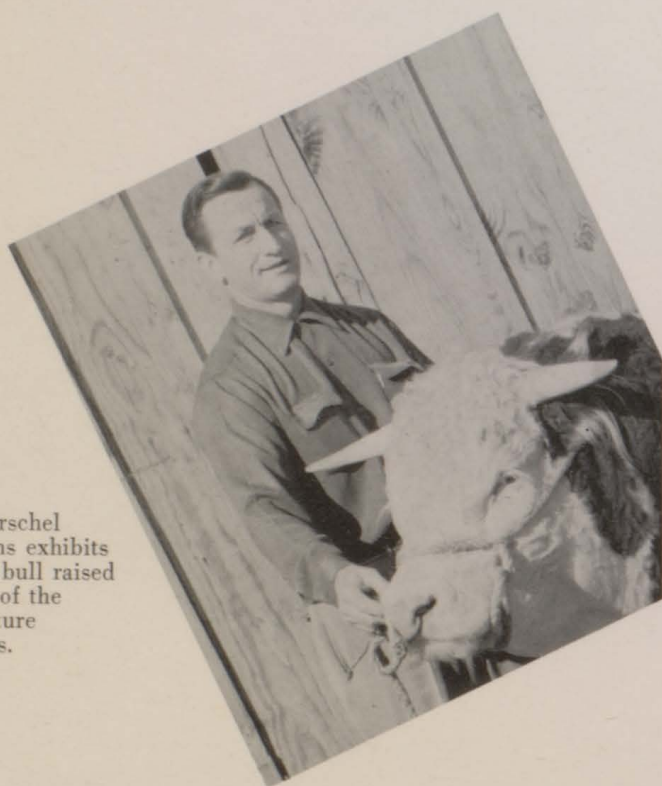

Mr. Marvin Jones (second-left) demonstrates a piece of apparatus to other members of the science department: Mr. Oren Fulmer, Mr. Sam Gunn, Mr. Robert Taylor, and Mr. Lamont Motes.

Major Wilmore S. Curtis, entering the Military Department, is stopped for a picture.

Mr. Herschel Simmons exhibits a prize bull raised by one of the agriculture students.

Mr. Del Knight, Guidance Counselor, advises a student on his courses.

Stopped during a conference are members of the Social Science department: Mr. Landon H. Brent, Mr. Gus Parker, Mr. Robert Bunch, and Mr. Elton Wall.

Mr. Del Knight and Mr. Bobby N. McElroy look on as Mr. Leonard Grace and Mrs. Margaret Mathews work a problem on the calculating machines.

Waiting in the office for a faculty meeting are members of the Language Department: Mr. Russell Floyd, Miss Nellie Lamar, and Mr. Aubrey Floyd.

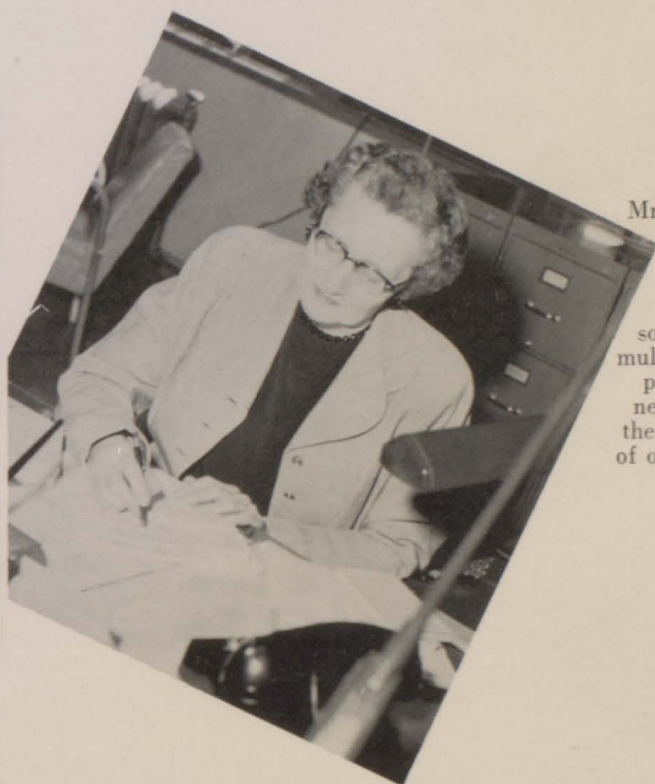

Mrs. Rose Dubose, Dietitian, stops work long enough for a picture.

Mrs. Isabel Kinnett, Mr. Clarence Goss, Mr. Tom Porter, Mr. B. C. Adams, and Mr. J. C. Sorrels, Mathematics teachers, examine a blackboard templet used in Plane Geometry.

Mrs. Delores Brown, school secretary, works on some of the multitudinous paper work necessary in the operation of our school.

Taking a break between classes are shop teachers: Mr. Hulin Webb, Mr. Robert Mathews, Mr. L. R. McCord, Mr. E. O. Clark, and Mr. Cotton Harrison.

Meeting in the library are some of the Social Science teachers: Mr. W. M. Rogers, Mr. M. L. Brannan, Mr. Wardlaw A. Johnson, and Mr. William E. Parsons.

HOME OF SIDNEY LANIER

Sidney Lanier, poet, linguist, musician, mathematician & lawyer, who was born in Macon Feb. 3, 1842, lived in this house. He graduated from Oglethorpe Univ. then at Milledgeville, served as a private in the Confederate Army and was captured while commanding a blockade runner. Lanier was married in '67 to Mary Day of Macon, where he practiced law with his father. Moving to Maryland he lectured at Johns Hopkins while carrying on his writing. He died at Lynn, N.C. Sept. 4, 1885. Among his best known works are "The Marshes of Glynn" & "Song of the Chattahoochee."

Classes

One of the places most popular to citizens and visitors in Macon is this attractive cottage—the birthplace of Sidney Lanier.

Built about one hundred and forty-seven years ago, a portion of the original building is still in use. It is today a private home, but visitors always find this spot to be one of interest.

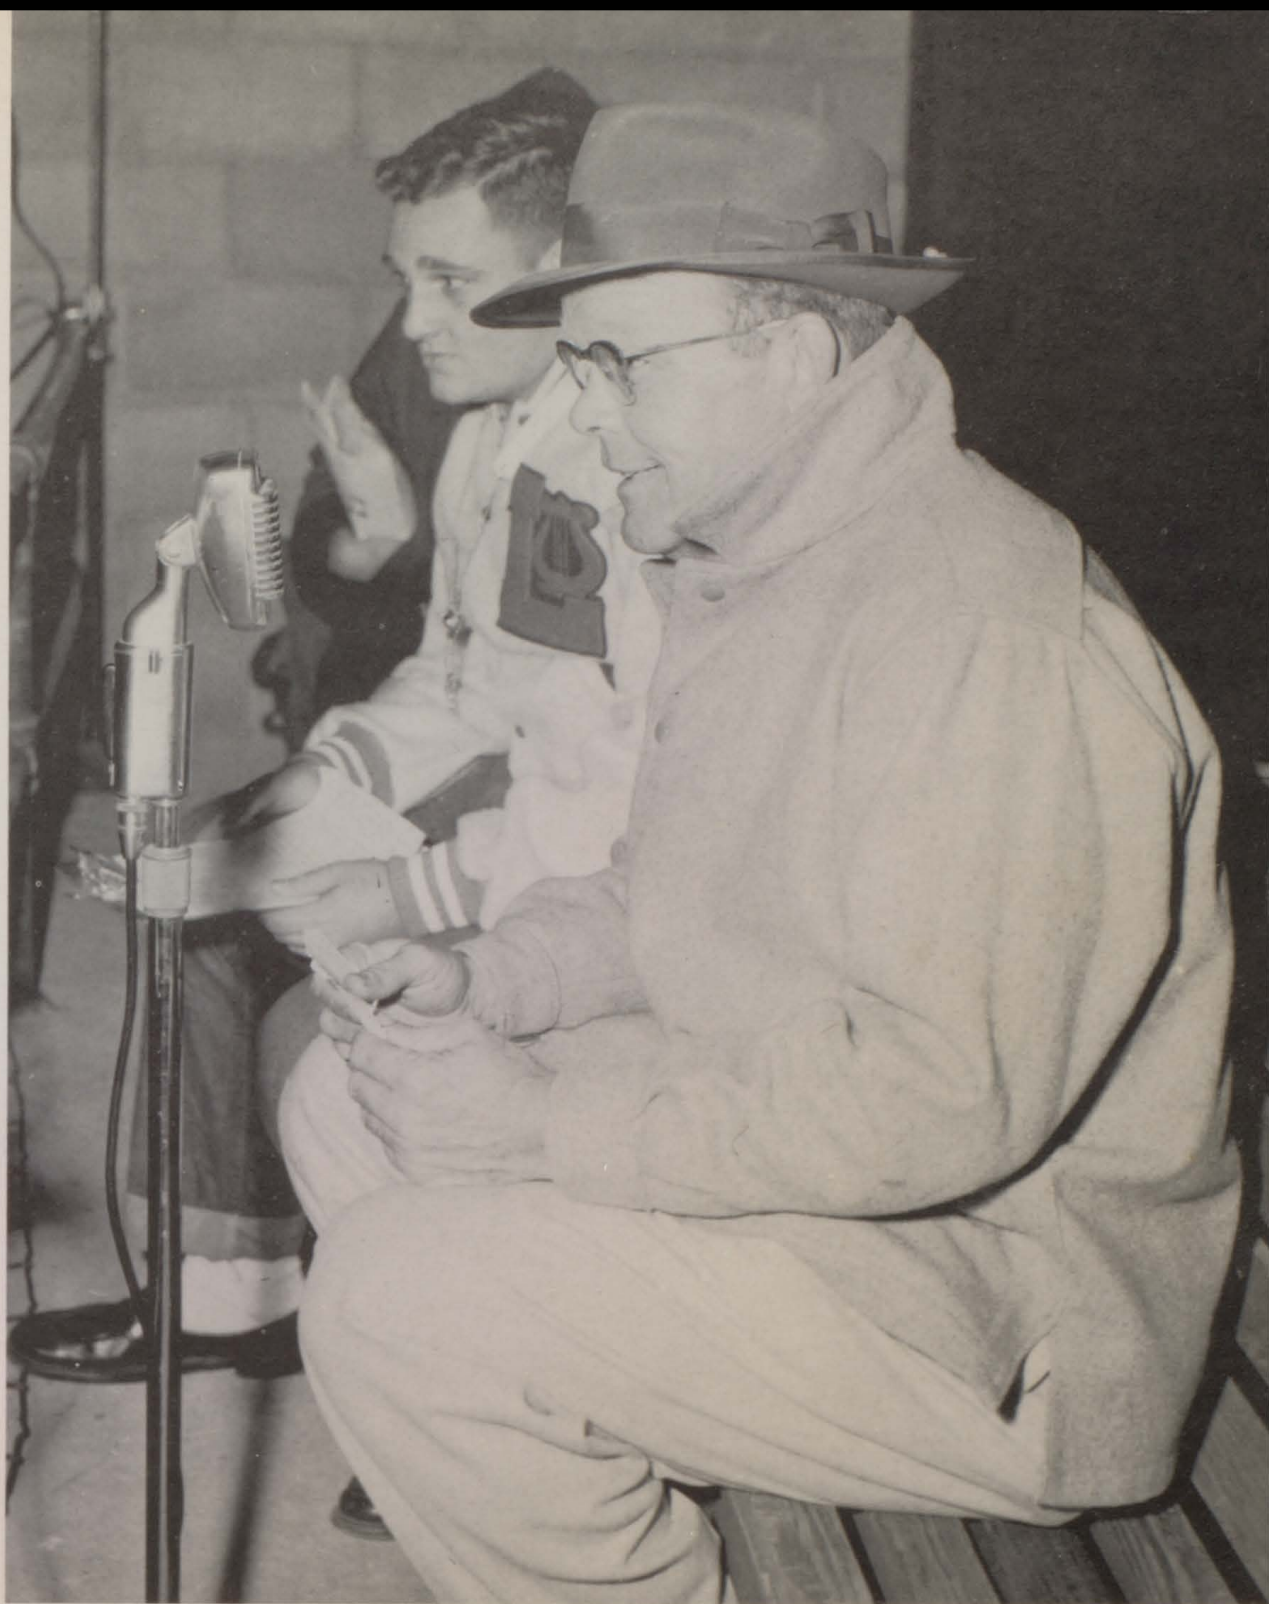

O. Henry, in one of his stories has said, "Figuratively, some people are Heads, some are Hands, some are Feet, and some are Backs for burdens."

To students at Miller, Miss Agnes Pittman is a Heart—a Heart filled with patience, sincerity, and, most of all, deep understanding.

As a teacher, she brings out the best that is possible for each of us in our personal lives and in the preparation for our chosen profession.

As an advisor and counselor, she inspires us to seek and follow the true moral and spiritual principles of life.

In recognizing her personal interest in our every activity and her tireless efforts in our behalf, we dedicate to Miss Agnes Pittman, the 1957 Annual.

We, the members of the Senior Class of Lanier Senior High school, proudly and with great esteem dedicate our 1957 Annual to Mr. Tom Porter. Mr. Porter has, through the years, been more than a teacher and a coach; he has been a friend to each and every Lanierian. Mr. Porter has lifted us up when we have failed and calmed us when we have succeeded. Without the strength of his influence, Lanier and Lanierians would not be the same. Our tribute is expressed in the words of the poet—

*"Open the door, let in the sun,
He hath a smile for everyone."*

Discussing plans for the members of the Senior Class of Miller are Paula Hirsh, Secretary - Treasurer; Lucie Thrasher, President; and Patsy Burton, Vice President.

Karen Talbird, Cindy Birdsey, Sylvia Brown, Maedene Thomas, and Jane Anderson are Directors of the Senior Class.

The three leading offices of the Senior Class at Lanier are held by Mallory Atkinson, Jr., Secretary-Treasurer; Jimmy Bootle, Vice President; and Albert Reichert, Jr., President.

Directors of Lanier's Senior Class are William P. Simmons, Jr.; David McCowen, Lloyd Clay, Reneau Van Landingham, and Freddy Barksdale.

CITY HALL & OLD CAPITOL

The Macon City Hall, built in 1837 for the Monroe Railroad & Banking Co. and since remodeled, served from Nov. 18, 1864 till March 11, 1865 as temporary Capitol of Ga. Here Gov. Brown had his office and convened the last session of the Ga. legislature under the Confederacy. Here the March session of the Supreme Court was held in 1865. The building was also used as a military hospital from the battle of Chickamauga in 1863 until the close of the war. A picket on guard at the portico was shot when Fed. Gen. Wilson entered the city on April 20, 1865.

Activities

Among the buildings of which Macon is justly proud is this stately and beautiful building—now called the City Hall. Surrounded by wide streets and carefully tended grounds, it earns the praises it so rightly deserves. In keeping with the progress of the city, it has many modern improvements that have been added so thoughtfully that they do not detract from the beauty of a structure as historic as this one.

Anna Watts, Ben Bivins, and John Black of the Annual staff discuss plans for the cover.

The theme committee; Sue Hatcher, Patsy Burgamy, and Peter Dennis, look at other annuals in an effort to find new ideas.

Mrs. Elizabeth Poe Clark, Miss Geraldine Jackson, and Miss Nellie Lamar, the editorial advisors, are selecting pictures for the yearbook.

Mrs. Richard Matthews, another editorial advisor, helps Sally Bryan, Eslye Moate, and Wendell Howell plan the activity section.

Carolyn Dorminy and Rosser Smith talk about the layout for the senior pictures.

Business Managers of the ANNUAL

Here it is . . . the ANNUAL of 1957! We've thought, we've planned, we've laughed, at times we've felt like crying! We've worked—but we've had fun; we have learned about themes, copy, layouts, and on and on—and here is the result—and we've met the deadline! We hope you like the book.

The Editorial Staff

We've worked, too—but in a different way. We've learned—we've sold ads, we've laid out pages, we've sold annuals, we've collected for ads, we've counted dimes, dollars, and pennies—and learned to roll them properly for bank deposits. Our last job—to distribute this book to you. Here it is!

The Business Staff

Betty Stroup, Ben McDonald, Edward Kennedy, John Henderson, Robbie Stinson, Bobby Lewis, Bobby Marsh, Nancy Hubbard, and Billy Mallard make up the business staff of the Annual.

Marie Shaw, Darien Hicks, and Bernice Horton are the Miller typists for the Annual.

The Lanier typists, Carlton Driskell and J. C. Snyder, under the direction of Mr. Del Knight, are kept busy by the editorial staff.

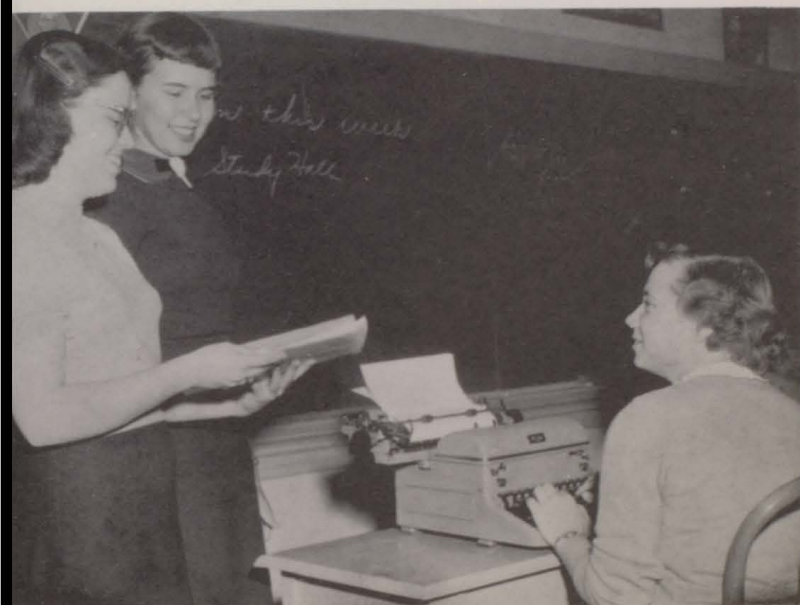

Marilyn Mitchiner sold the most ads for the annual this year at Miller.

The advisors for the business staff, Mr. J. C. Sorrells and Miss Catherine Jones, look over records of Annual sales.

Billy Pell, Jimmy Asbell and Lindsey Simpson, Lanier annual salesmen, leave Miller after comparing notes with the Miller business staff.

The ANNUAL'S Business Staff

The editorial staff of Miller's newspaper, the GIRLS HI LIGHTS, is composed of Sandra Ledford, sports editor; Ruth Wood, editor; Jeannette Cannon, reporter; Laurie Whittelsey, exchange editor; Patricia Eubanks, feature editor; Jean Yawn, reporter; Sally Stripling, cartoon editor; Frances Webster, reporter; Faye Arnold, news editor; and Betty Claire Mannang, managing editor.

Susan Maxwell, circulation manager, counts papers while Sally Bryan, business manager, and Janet Stovall, advertising manager, send out bills for ads.

The ad solicitors for the Hi-Lights are: Margie Hurst, Brenda Bush, Gloria McGee, Pat Jenkins, Patsy Antrim, Anne Dunlap, Palmer Lamback, Sarah Halliburton, Margaret Ringwald, Jeane Fullwood, Marilyn Mitchiner, Vivian Walker, Cusie Chichester, and Sondra Slocumb.

They began their work last fall before school started and spent many hours soliciting ads for the newspaper. This work is essential in the publication of a newspaper, and, in performing this job, they receive valuable experience.

Those girls who have been of the greatest help in getting ads will be considered for the positions of circulation manager, business manager, and advertising manager on the 1957-58 business staff.

The reporters for the POET LEADER receive assignments from editor Steve Smith and associate editor Bill Moss. These boys are responsible for the newspaper.

George Stanton, business manager, and his staff plan the best way to solicit advertisements from the local merchants. The business staff is also responsible for the sale of subscriptions throughout the school.

Steve Smith, editor of the POET LEADER, and Mr. Gratigny, editorial advisor, meet with George Stanton, business manager, and Mr. Adams, business advisor, in the course of publishing the Lanier newspaper.

One of the most active organizations at Miller is the STUDENT COUNCIL. Composed of representatives of each supervision, this club is outstanding in the many projects it accomplishes throughout the year.

FIRST WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Wesleyan College issued world's first college degrees to women here in 1836, filling woman's timeless desire for a bachelor's degree. Construction of these buildings began in 1837, now house Wesleyan's Conservatory of Fine Arts. The modern campus is 5 miles north.

Superlatives

Wesleyan College, once called "the Magna Carta of education for women," is located on a beautiful modern campus in Rivoli, a suburb of Macon. Today, as in the past, Wesleyan is a center of culture and learning in the community. This historic school, with such a distinctive and glorious past, attracts from far and wide students and visitors anxious to learn more of a college with such an enviable record.

The new Ocmulgee National Park museum, completed in 1952, contains exhibits which explain the archeological features of the Ocmulgee National Monument. This monument, which preserves the remains of an unusual concentration of Indian villages, was the first scientifically excavated large Indian site in the South. The evidence found here has done much to establish facts about Southern pre-Columbian history. A record of the historic heritage of this section, the area has been rightly preserved.

They are Patsy Burton, Susan Ross, Carol Wolf-ram, Sandra Beach, Ginny Worm, Edris Jones, Maedene Thomas, Pat Parks, Marcia Perry, Sandra Ledford, Charlotte Doughman, and Norma Osteen.

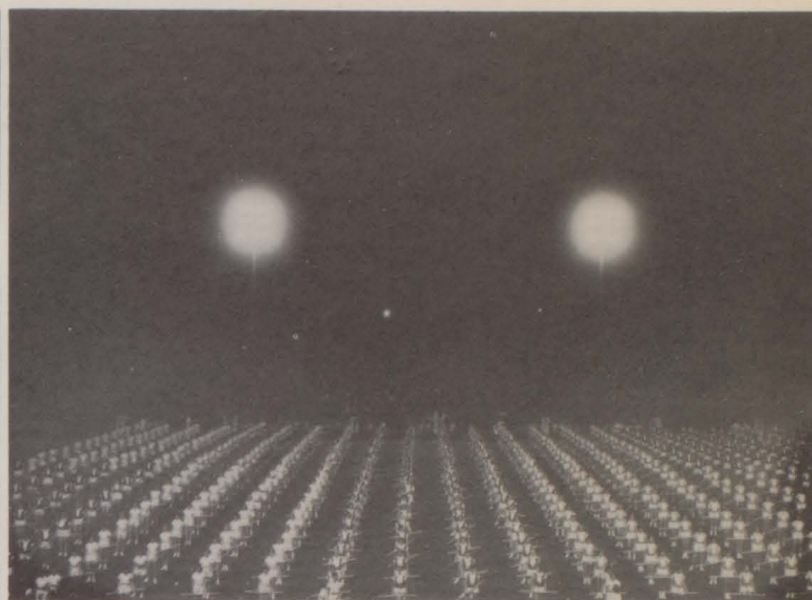

The lieutenants for the various companies are these junior gym assistants: Connie Shaw, Sara Ann Smith, Sarah Akers, Helen Ross, Sandy Brock, Sally Ander-son, Barbara Veal, Linda Close, Mary Vance, Sondra Slocumb, Jean Ryle, and Louise Lamar.

Aides for the Exhibition this year are Kay Berkstresser, Glenda Brogden, Peggy Giddens, Anna Watts, Madeleine Calhoun, Patsy White, Iris Roberts, Betty Churchwell, Penny Ryther, Mar-ian Rivers, Sonja Reddy, Ann Maxwell, and Linda Carstarphen.

A colorful and breathtaking sight given at the stadium.

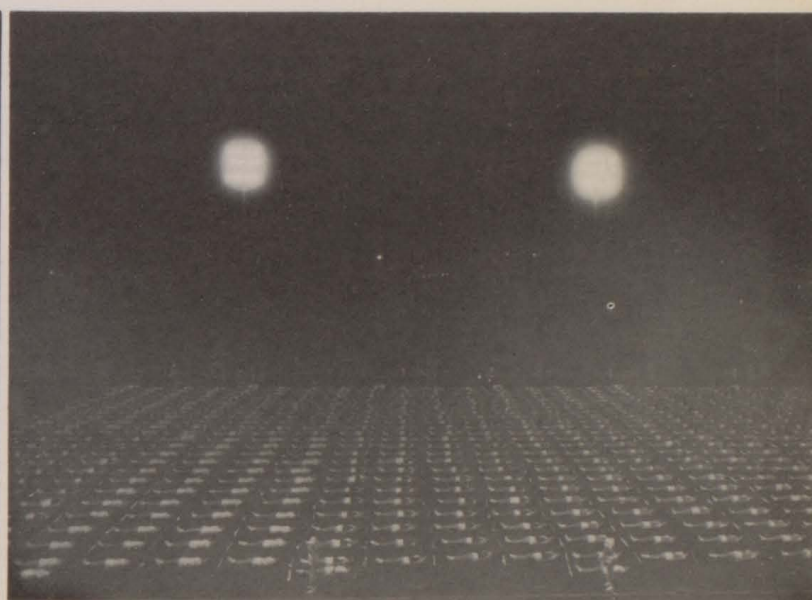

"Companies, class halt—one, two . . ."

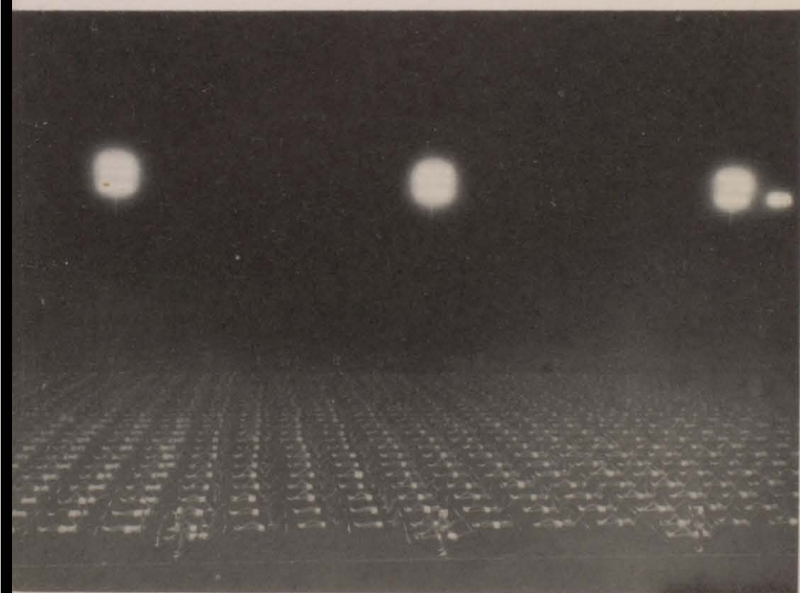

"First wand drill, position . . ."

"Wands on the ground in six counts, ready . . ."

"On the ground in four counts—one, two . . ."

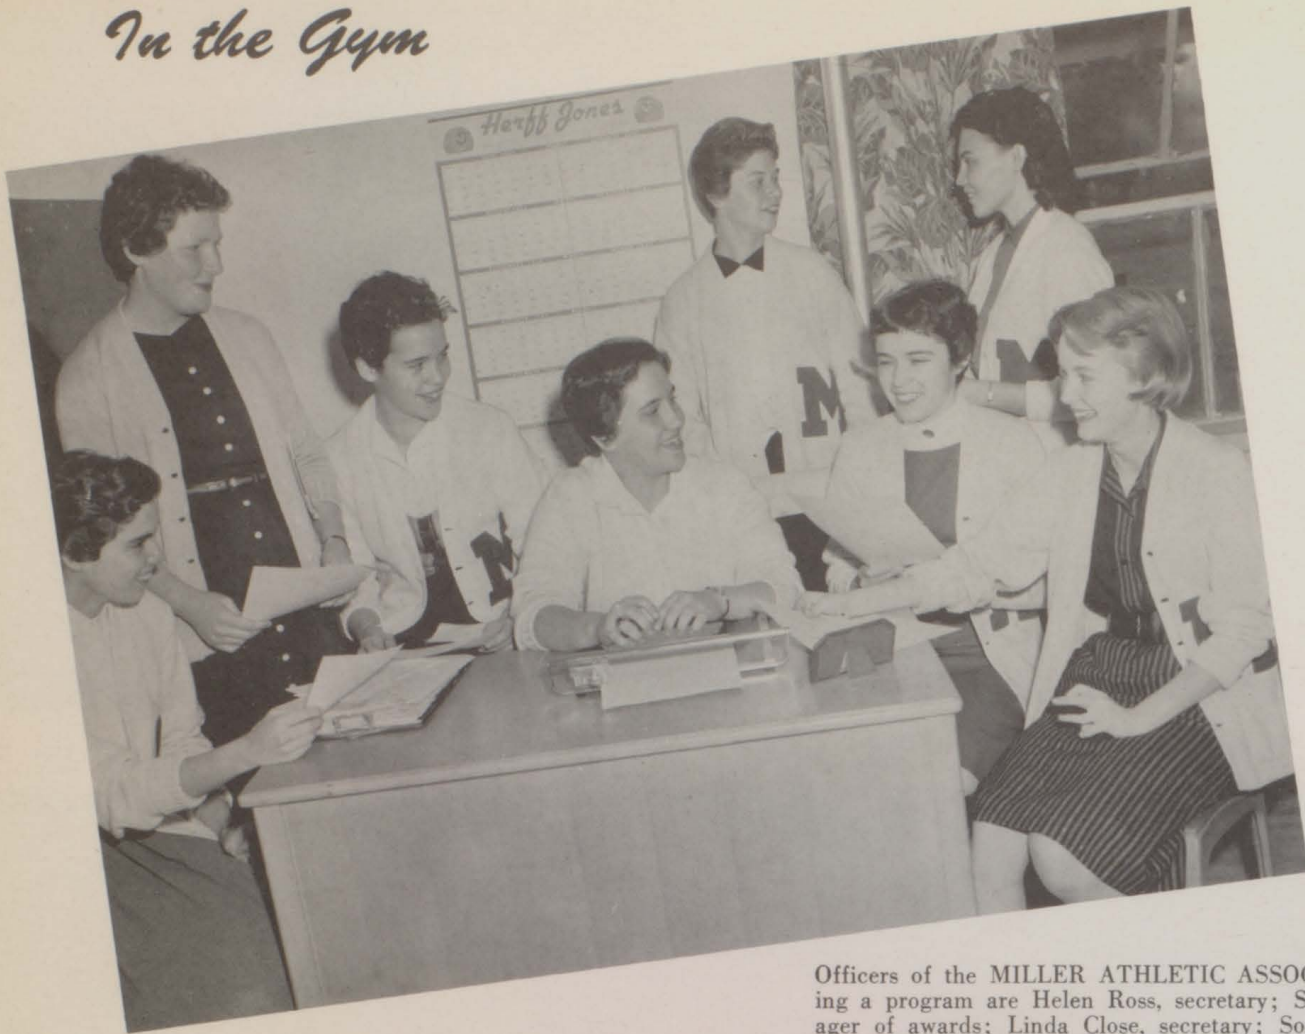

"Third exercise, ready . . ."

"First flashlight drill, ready with the count begin, and . . ."

In the Gym

Officers of the MILLER ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION discussing a program are Helen Ross, secretary; Sarah Akers, manager of awards; Linda Close, secretary; Sonja Reddy, president; Zell Bolden, scribe; Maedene Thomas, manager of awards; Laverne Knight, sergeant-at-arms; and Jean Ryle, vice-president.

The MILLER ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION is a club for girls who are especially interested in sports. They gain membership and earn an "M" by participating in sports at school and thus earning the number of points required for membership.

Hockey, one of the favorite outdoor sports, appeals to most Millerites. In the class tournaments, the seniors were the hockey champs for 1957.

Another sport popular with Miller girls is soccer. In the final play-off, the champs for 1957 were the seniors.

The girls on the team from Supervision 4 were the supervision volleyball champions this year.

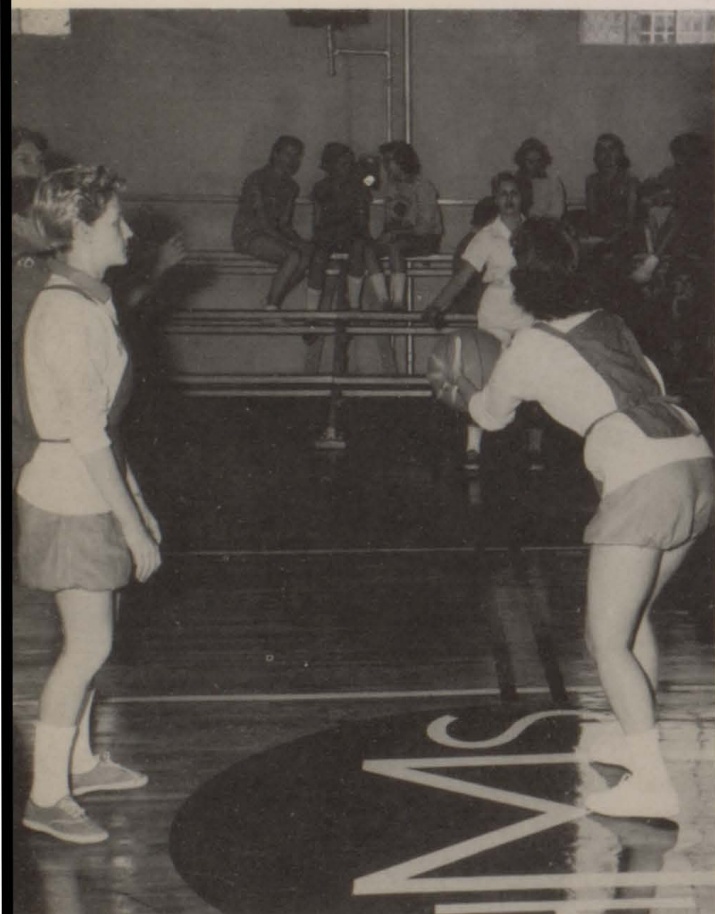

Winning the class volleyball championship for 1957 was this team of outstanding athletes—the seniors!

BASKETBALL, the favorite sport of Americans, is quite popular with Miller athletes. After the girls have learned to play the game, they turn their interest toward the games played by supervision teams. Finally, as in all sports, the class teams play against each other in tournament pairings to determine the winning team from one of the three classes.

Preparing for a game of basketball are Mary Blake, Gail Waters, Helga Scheffler, and Carol Hicks.

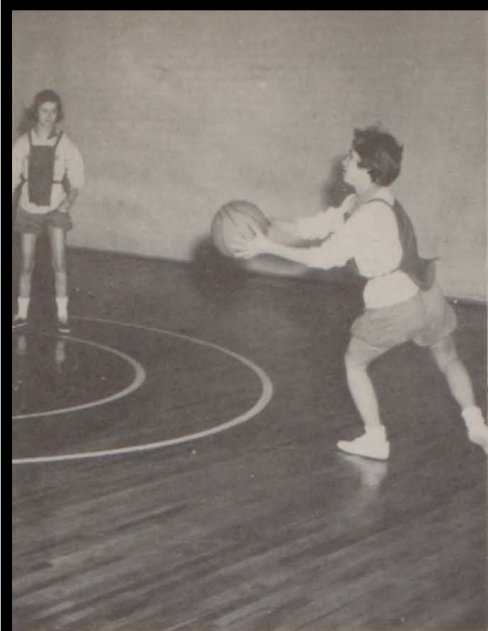

The referee, Tricia Walker, yells, "Play ball!"

Charlotte Milor, dribbling, is blocked by Norma Thomas.

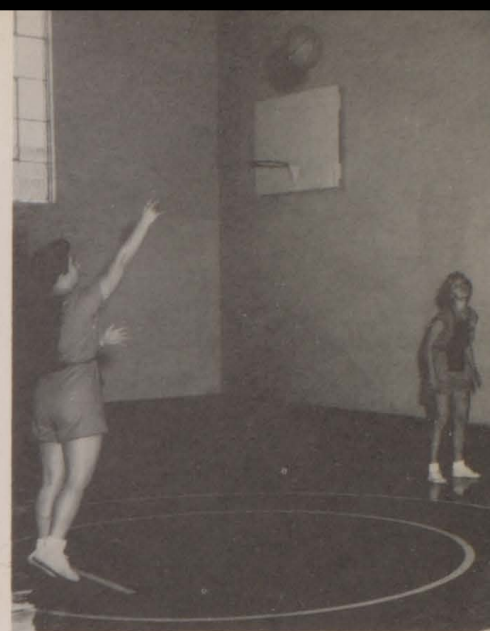

Will she ring it?

Watch out—Margie has the ball!

This pass was not blocked.

Sonja Reddy tries to make a free shot count.

Of the indoor sports, basketball is the favorite of many—and these shots are typical of a gym class playing that sport loved by Americans.

Even a bandaged wrist does not stop Kathryn Harris from making this throw-in.

A jump ball can go to either side.

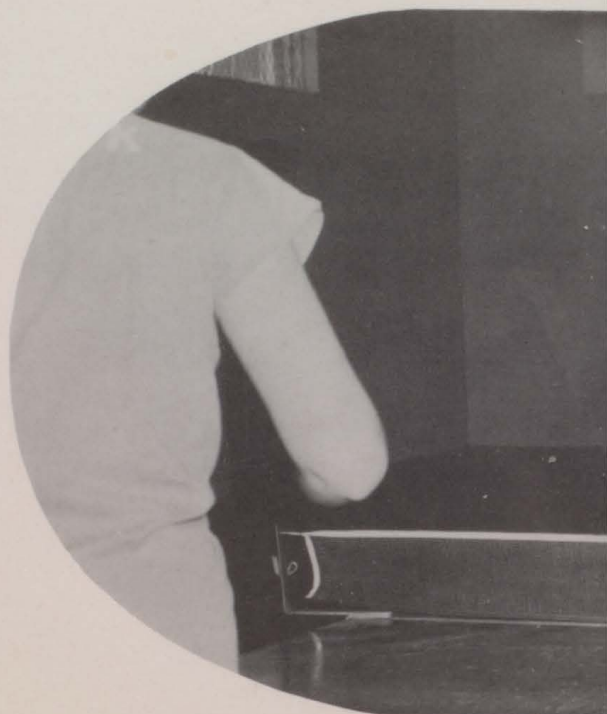

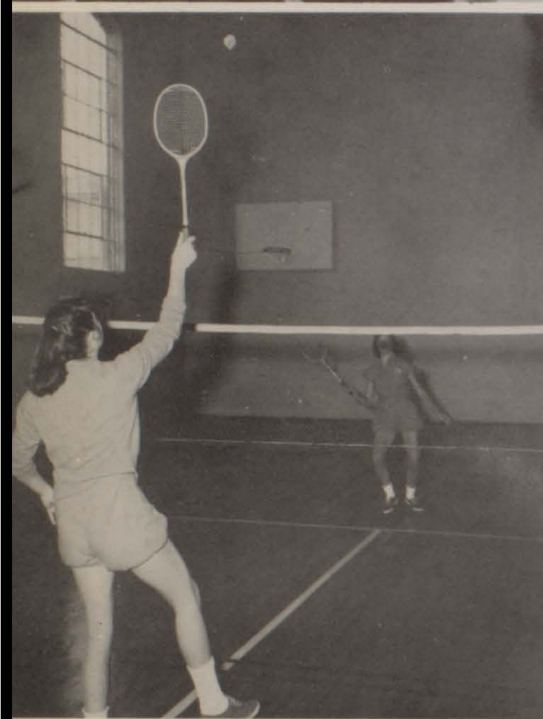

Girls in this gym class climb the steps to get dressed for gym.

And, from the dressing rooms, they come, ready for an hour of exercise and play.

Shuffleboard is a relaxing game.

An active game for two or four players is badminton.

Keeping an eye on the ball is important in playing a serious game of ping-pong.

Stringing the bow is one of the first steps in preparing for archery.

Hockey is a game for the "rough and ready!"

In speedpinball, the girls playing in the circle help to block a scoring attempt.

A hockey game gets started with the words—"ground sticks, ground, sticks, ground, sticks, bully."

With a smashing serve, Linda Close begins a round of tennis.

Two points are scored in speedpinball as the circle fails to stop the ball.

The gym assistants take out equipment for a hockey game.

Girls from the third period gym class are busy taking notes on soccer.

HISTORIC FORT HAWKINS

This blockhouse replica marks southeastern corner of stockade built by Pres. Jefferson in 1806. The fort was headquarters for U.S. troops & supplies during Creek War. Andrew Jackson later led troops from this base. Last Indian assembly met in 1819, shortly before Macon was founded. EM. E. F.C.

Military

Macon has the distinction of being the only Southeastern city tracing its origin to a colonial fort-trading post. Fort Hawkins, founded by Colonel Benjamin Hawkins, was built on land obtained from the Creek Indians following a treaty in 1805. This fort played an important role in early American advancement. An exact replica of the block house is one of the city's most interesting historical attractions.

JUDGE ASA HOLT HOUSE

This house, built in 1853 by Judge Asa Holt, was struck by a cannon ball from Gen. Stoneman's guns in East Macon during the Battle of Dunlap's Hill, July 30, 1864, when the Union army tried unsuccessfully to take Macon. The ball, now in the possession of the Macon Volunteers, struck the sand sidewalk, passed through the second column from the left, entered the parlor over a window and landed unexploded in the hall. Its course may be traced by the mended column, a patch in the parlor plaster and a dent in the hall floor. The house is still the residence of a descendant of Judge Holt.

In a city well known for its parks, wide streets, lovely old homes, and hospitality is the Asa Holt House. Located on Mulberry Street, it is in an area fast being absorbed by a growing city. Although houses of a later date crowd it on both sides, the imposing home still has a definite "air of its own" and seems to shrink within itself, as it holds to its historic past.

COLONIAL TRADING PATH

Colonial Trading Path or "Lower Path" leading from the Creek Nation on the Chattahoochee River to the English Trading Post in Ocmulgee Old Fields, now Ocmulgee National Monument, where were once concentrated the chief towns of the ancient Creek Confederacy, stretching fifteen miles on the east side of Ocmulgee River. This Path was originally the old Sand Hill Path, across west Georgia from the Chattahoochee River, across the Flint River, and across the Ocmulgee River, eastward. The Indians followed this Path from the west to Ocmulgee Old Fields, following Hydranges Branch in this neighborhood (so called by William Bartram), using it to come to the Trading Post established by the English, 1686-1700. Benjamin Hawkins established "The Agency" at the Flint River crossing, where he had his home. It was the roadway to Fort Hawkins in East Macon, erected in 1806. This was long known as the Federal Highway, authorized by Thomas Jefferson. Federal Highway 80, "Lower Path" from Fort Mitchell on the Chattahoochee, the outline of the old Trading Post may now be seen in the present Ocmulgee National Monument in East Macon. This is a relic of the 100 year rule of the Georgia Trustees, the Lords Proprietors before Oglethorpe (1629-1733).

As we stand on the spot once used by the Indians as a trail leading to a Trading Post established by the English in the seventeenth century, as we stand on that spot now used by twentieth century Americans as a link in a network of highways connecting large cities, we, at the end of this Annual, can well agree with Rebecca McCann as she says,

*"The closer we draw to the end of things here
The nearer we are to some other beginning."*

This book is ended, this part of our lives is ended, and, realizing the inevitableness of change, we are ready for another beginning.

John
